

AMERICANS FORCE JAPANESE INTO TRAP ON ATTU

FINAL PHASE of the Battle of Attu seems to be near, as the Jap defenders of the island are forced into a trap on the shore of Chichagof harbor, where they are being pounded by warships' guns and planes as well as the U. S. ground forces. This map shows how the American troops, landing on opposite sides of the island, steadily advanced and forced the enemy into the trap. (International)

U. S. AIMS AT JAPAN'S FOOD

Will Cut Off Enemy Fishing Ground, Striking From Aleutians

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 22.—American conquest of the western Aleutians, some authorities said today, probably would prove to be a serious stab at Japan's food supply by bringing important North Pacific fishing grounds under the guns of American patrol ships and planes.

Cutting the enemy's seafood supply by sinking some of his fishing boats and sending the rest scuttling back to Japan, it was said, would be a major step in the planned economic strangulation of the island empire.

Fish—along with rice—constitutes a chief part of the Japanese diet. These strategists said a campaign to close huge fishing grounds to the enemy probably will be one of the first moves of the American North Pacific command, as soon as forward positions in the western Aleutians have been secured and developed.

Most advanced of the air bases undoubtedly will be on Attu island, where Japanese resistance has been all but eliminated by Americans who invaded the island 12 days ago.

Secretary Knox told a press conference late yesterday that the campaign was successful and it was only a question of time until the Japanese remnants trapped on the northeastern extremity of Attu were finally overwhelmed.

The Tokyo radio quoted circles close to the Japanese war office as saying a real fight "from now" on had begun, as Attu after Japanese troops gave up their advance posts to shorten their defense lines. But little credence was given the report here, and it was noted that Knox—usually conservative in any victory predictions, said Japanese forces left on Attu had no choice but to surrender or die.

Official war bulletins showed that the enemy was besieged on the tip of a mountainous peninsula, occupying only an area of about 20 miles.

The ground attack was being pressed home, supported by air and naval units, and Knox declared emphatically that the navy controls the approaches to Attu and no evacuation—such as Tokyo claimed—was possible.

TIN CANS FOR WAR: CALL 5251, AND NOW

If you have some tin cans for salvage and haven't called 5251, do it now.

So many calls have been received that Salvage Chairman A. V. Smith has arranged with Service Director Frank Wilson to send city trucks out next week to make collections.

To make sure your cans are collected at that time, call 5251 and say you have cans ready.

Before the trucks arrive, be sure your cans are cleaned thoroughly on the inside, that paper labels are removed and that the cans are flattened.

POLICE FIND LIQUOR CACHE

16 Cases of "Bootleg" Discovered In Autos On Haul-away Truck

Federal authorities are expected to join in the investigation of an illegal liquor transportation plot which was disclosed last night by the death of a driver on whose truck the cache of 16 cases was found.

The driver, Robert Bryant Fowler, 49, of Flint, Mich., died at the intersection of Routes 7 and 14 about 10:30 p. m. after becoming ill. A heart attack was the cause of death, a Columbia physician said.

A passenger on the truck, Arthur Rocco of Youngstown, is held in Columbiana jail on a charge of suspicion.

Deputy Sheriff Howard Clark, notified of the man's death, discovered the whiskey hidden inside three automobiles which were being transported on Fowler's haul-away truck. The whiskey, confiscated by the authorities, is worth about $800, it was reported.

Rocco, who is expected by deputy sheriffs, to reveal where the liquor was obtained, told Deputy Sheriff Clark and State Patrolman Cornelius Csepke last night that three pairs of women's shoes, found in the truck, were purchased in New York City without the use of ration stamps.

The whiskey included 14 cases of fifths and two cases of quarts.

The authorities found $200 in a money belt which Fowler wore. His body was removed to the Warlick parlors at Columbiana.

YANK BOMBERS, FIGHTERS GET 86 MORE FOE PLANES

BERLIN, OTHER NAZI TARGETS BOMBED AGAIN

Reich Capital Is Pounded By British Third Successive Night

FORTRESSES MAKE DAYLIGHT RAIDS

Wilhelmshaven and Emden Are Blasted By Big American Ships

(By Associated Press) LONDON, May 22.—Britain's new and speedy Mosquito bombers returned again to Berlin last night to blast targets in the reich capital for the third successive night.

Other British planes laid mines in enemy waters overnight while Mosquito intruders attacked railway targets in France and Whirlwinds sank two ships out of a five-ship convoy off the French coast.

The after-dark attacks followed up yesterday's daylight raids by American Flying Fortresses on important sources of German U-boat strength at Wilhelmshaven and Emden and carried into the night the aerial offensive which many sources expect to turn soon into a death-blow attack against Hitler's Europe.

The British reported five bombers and one fighter missing from the night's operations.

Major Damage Recorded

The German high command's communique, as broadcast from Berlin, said "major damage was done to property in Wilhelmshaven and Emden" by the American bombing yesterday, but claimed 17 of the four-engined bombers were brought down by German fighters and naval anti-aircraft.

It was announced officially that Whirlwind fighter-bombers sank the two enemy ships and damaged a third, a medium-sized motor vessel, in a convoy of five ships surprised off Cherbourg.

Mosquitoes, Beaufighters and Boston bombers struck behind the French coast in wide intruder raids. Several trains were shot up. One plane failed to return, the air ministry said.

An air alarm aroused London shortly after midnight as the enemy struck weakly at the capital for the successive night, but apart from the noise of a furious barrage directed against a lone raider apparently nothing happened in the metropolitan area.

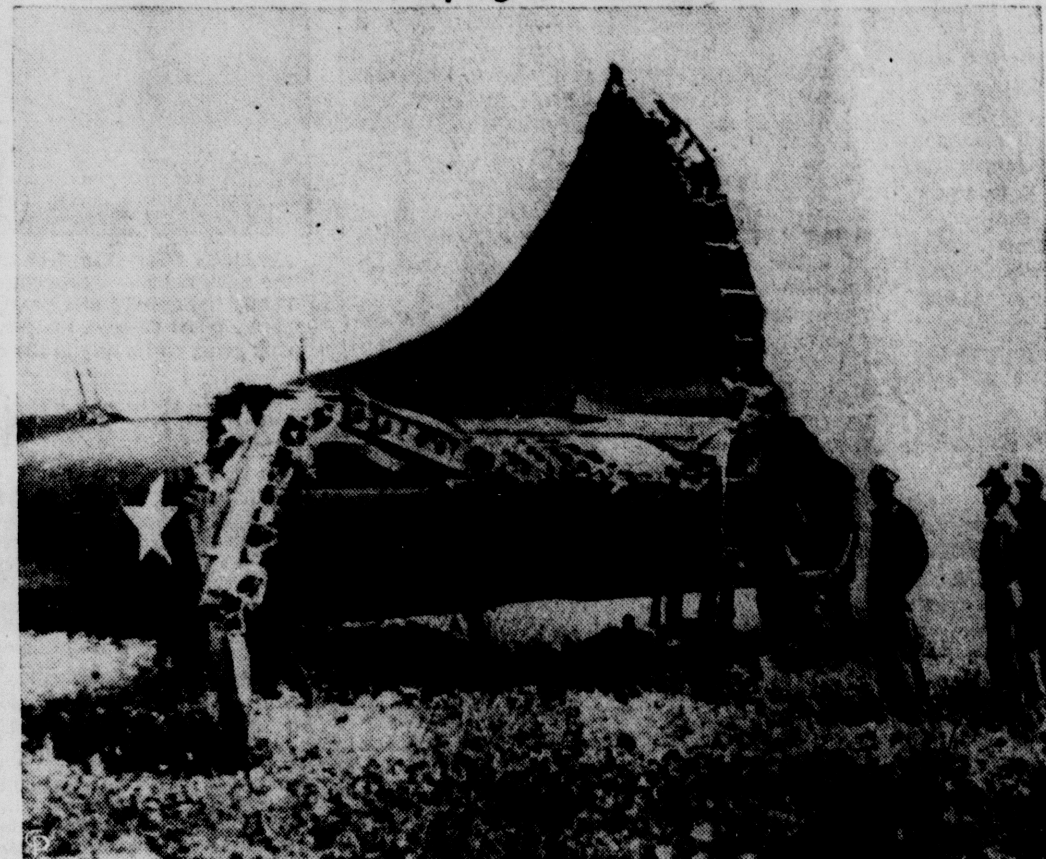

Nazi fighter-bombers flitted across the southeast coast on two occasions during the night. It was announced one raider was brought down and that bombs caused some damage and casualties.

The Eighth U. S. Air Force said yesterday's mid-day assaults on Emden and Wilhelmshaven, Germany's North sea naval bases, "were pressed home and a large weight of bombs" dropped "despite very strong enemy fighter opposition and intense flak."

The four-engined heavy bombers flew unscathed and 12 failed to return. The communique said many enemy fighters were destroyed.

Returning fliers estimated that between 100 and 150 Nazi fighters swarmed around the Fortress over Turn to BERLIN, Page 8

3-DAY TOTAL IN AIR RAIDS REACHES 275

Northwest African Flyers Pound At Sardinia And Sicily

AIRDROMES AND HANGARS ARE HIT

202 Planes Destroyed On Ground, 73 Shot Down In Combat

(By Associated Press) ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 22.—American bombers and fighters destroyed 86 enemy planes yesterday in sky sweeping combats and damaging raids on Axis airdromes in Sardinia and Sicily.

Nineteen fighters were destroyed in combat and another 67 were knocked out on the ground.

Yesterday's victories brought the three-day score of the Northwest African Air force to 272 enemy planes, of which 70 were shot down and 202 were destroyed on the ground.

(This direct dispatch did not take into account three additional enemy fighters which the communique said were destroyed Thursday night. These would raise the three day total to 275.)

Large fires were left burning by fighter-escorted Flying Fortresses in attacks yesterday on Sardinia and Sicily.

Harbor installations and gun positions on Pantelleria island, 45 miles east of Cap Bon peninsula, again were attacked.

Seven Allied planes failed to return from all the missions, headquarters said.

In addition to the planes shot out of the air in yesterday's attacks, aircraft on the ground were destroyed in the attacks on the Sicilian airdromes. "Both targets were well-covered by bomb bursts and fires were started," the communique said.

In the raids on the Sardinian airfields, "large fires and extensive damage to airdrome buildings and to aircraft on the ground resulted," it added.

(A Middle East command communique issued at Cairo said U. S. bombers scored direct hits on ferry terminals at San Giovanni and Reggio Calabria on the Italian mainland yesterday, destroying 10 Axis fighter planes attempting to intercept. RAF heavy bombers also attacked Reggio Calabria and Messina Thursday night, starting fires in ferry berths and railway yards, the war bulletin said.)

COMMUNIST UNITS TO BE DISBANDED

All Branches Throughout World Today Are Asked To Be Dissolved

(By Associated Press) MOSCOW, May 22.—The executive committee of the Communist International asked branches throughout the world today to consider its recommendation to dissolve.

Pointing out there was no time now for a formal convention, the executive committee recommended that sections, wherever they exist, cease their duties under prevailing regulations.

LONDON, May 22.—Through dissolution of the Communist International, Soviet Russia proposed today to destroy the basis for the Bolshevik bogeyman which Germany has been holding up to the world.

The resolution adopted by the presidium of the International executive committee in Moscow was interpreted here as meaning complete abolition of the Third International—although it did not specifically rule out reestablishment of the organization after the war.

Both the Soviet monitor, who recorded the resolution in London, and Communist party quarters endorsed this interpretation of the resolution.

One Communist authority added that dissolution of the International would clear the way for uniting all Communist and Socialist parties throughout the world on a new voluntary basis.

He declared the International never would be resurrected.

DESIGNATE STAMPS FOR EXTRA SUGAR

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Starting next Monday, stamps No. 15 and 16 in ration book one will be good for five pounds of sugar each for home canning.

The Office of Price Administration abandoned a previously announced program under which home canners would have applied to local ration boards for sugar allotments.

The sugar-for-canning provision does not interfere with the regular sugar rationing program, OPA said.

DUCE CELEBRATES PACT WITH NAZIS

Fourth Anniversary Ceremony, However, Is Somewhat Dull

LONDON, May 22.—Italy observed today with a minimum of ceremony the fourth anniversary of her costliest bargain—the signing of a pact with Germany.

Benito Mussolini looked to his inadequately guarded skies and his menaced coastline in an anxious calculation of a yet unpaid balance amid the heightening havoc of the Allies' aerial onslaught, and summoned the chiefs of his civil departments to receive whatever consolation he can find in reports of the newest preparations against invasion.

On the eve of the anniversary the duce and the tired-faced German Fuehrer exchanged their usual self-congratulations, full of friendly phrases but barren of any specific assurance Germany's armed might would come all-out to Italy's aid in her nearing hour of trial.

Hitler, from whom Mussolini wanted troops, planes and anti-aircraft guns more urgently than he desires compliments, said in a message to Mussolini "I send you warmest good wishes of the German people. I share in the admiration for the great fight waged by Italy's forces. And wish to assure you of my absolute certainty that efforts and sacrifices which had to be made will find their reward in the glorious victory of our just cause."

Mussolini replied only "today while our armies and nations are fighting against the common enemy. I wish once again to confirm Fascist Italy's indissoluble solidarity of arms and sentiments with national Socialist Germany and our complete confidence in victory."

Girls On Proving Ground Firing Line Speed Axis Defeat

(By Associated Press) ERIE PROVING GROUND, May 22.—Girls, some of them out of high school barely a year, are working on the firing line to help speed artillery to the battle fronts.

The army demonstrated the feminine role yesterday in a spectacular display of firepower in observance of the 25th anniversary of this testing ground by Lake Erie.

The girls, their ears stuffed to preserve drums, have helped establish a proving line that O. K.'s or rejects artillery in the same swift fashion that industry's production line turns it out.

They sat under 90 millimeter anti-aircraft guns, for instance, and grinned at the terrific slap of the high velocity weapons as they fed in ammunition with much the same nonchalance as putting dishes in the sink at home.

"It sort of scares you," said 20-year-old Betty Wright of Port Clinton, "but you get used to it. I've been doing this since last August."

A crew of girls whipped a 3-inch tank gun through a rapid-fire operation that army men said was as good as the performance of a trained crew in the field. It was a shell-box-to-gun-to-breach-and-fire maneuver that clicked and thundered with precise rhythm and not an ounce of lost motion.

"It's girls like these who have helped us do what we are doing," said Col. F. C. Shaffer, post commandant. "We've worked out a system of such high efficiency that a trainload of guns received in the morning will be on the way back to the factory by night, tested and ready to be mounted on tanks."

Colonel Shaffer disclosed to the public for the first time a 240 MM howitzer, a 32-ton piece of field artillery which he said helped turn the tide in Tunisia. It is the largest mobile weapon in the army and fires a 360-pound projectile 14 miles. It can be set up and put in operation in 30 minutes and then broken down and moved within 10 minutes, Shaffer said.

Stone's address, which will be delivered at Reilly stadium on the evening of June 14, will be preceded by a street parade. Arrangements are already being made to line up a number of musical organizations from the district to take part in the parade.

In the event of inclement weather, the speaking program will be held in the High school auditorium.

CONVENE TUESDAY ON MEMORIAL PLANS

Final plans for Salem's Memorial day services next Sunday are expected to be completed by the various committees by Tuesday.

E. G. Votaw, general chairman, presided over a meeting last night of representatives of the patriotic organizations when the different groups were asked to have arrangements completed Tuesday.

A parade will be a feature of the ceremonies.

An invitation was received from Rev. Carl Asmus for the patriotic organizations to attend the Methodist church service tomorrow morning in a body. The groups are requested to meet at G. A. R. hall at 10:30 tomorrow morning to go to the church for the 10:55 service.

Three Shirts A Week

CLEVELAND, May 22.—Three shirts a week is the customer's limit under a rationing program established by laundries here.

"We were unable to keep up with demand," William E. Kenney, vice president of the Davis Laundry and Cleaning Co., said today.

The rationing program was brought about when the laundry fell 6,000 shirts behind the demand, Kenney said.

HE WAS HUNTING WATER, NOT LIQUOR

Wilford Thomas, waterworks department employee, was in for a lot of kidding today.

Patrolman James Hassey went to the scene and found Thomas—unquestionably sober—hunting for a water line leak.

STEWING IN THEIR OWN JUICE

Hopeful talk of compromise on a current payment tax plan by Democrats stewing in their own juice deserves little attention by the Republican opposition and will be lucky to get that.

The Democrats, having voted down the only feasible plan to come before congress, not once but several times, are in a dilemma of their own making. They should now take the advice of their chairman of the ways and means committee and forget that income tax reform ever was mentioned. It isn't good advice, but it fits their party attitude perfectly.

They chose to knife a sound proposal, not because they could prove it was unsound but because they nursed a grudge against the Republicans in congress for taking the initiative away from them on the vital matter of adjusting income tax payment to meet the needs of the nation's taxpayers. They now have nothing but what they bargained for—nothing.

There simply isn't anything to compromise about.

TACTICAL NOTE

The vote in the house of representatives on the issue of putting income taxes on a current collection basis was close—202 opposed, 194 in favor. But it would be failure to understand how these things work to assume that the final decision was as clean-cut as the figures make it appear. When the roll call had been taken, the fun began. One Mississippi gentleman popped up to announce that he had not voted yes but no. A Texas gentleman said he wanted to change his vote from yes to present. A gentleman from New York (a Democratic gentleman) said he had come in late and wanted to vote no, but the chair ruled him down. A Florida gentleman changed his vote from yes to no. A Kentucky gentleman switched from yes to no. Two other gentlemen switched from no to a neutral present, but the damage had been done. The chips were down on the vote, and the Democratic south was teamed up with the New Deal to make certain, sure, that those danyankees would be put in their places.

ATTU IN REVERSE

Possibly, it won't be easier to reconcile the Japanese to the loss of Attu and its partly developed military facilities than it was to reconcile the American public to Japanese seizure of the island in the first place. The Attu shoe is on the other foot; the Kiska shoe seems destined for the same switch in the near future.

One of the traditional difficulties of war, and the reason for tight censorship, in a good many instances, is determination of popular sentiment in enemy countries. It is not imaginable that their losses have done any fatal damage to the Japanese as far as morale is concerned, but neither is it imaginable that the Japanese who know what is going on can shrug off the misadventures in New Guinea, the Solomon islands and now the Aleutians as matters of no consequence. It is as well known in Japan's military hierarchy as it is in the United States that the Pacific war so far is only a sample of what will happen when the counter-attacking really gets under way, Attu-style.

WEATHER NERVES

Weather records that seem to prove this isn't, after all, a spring to be long remembered for its wetness merely irritate the population's badly jangled weather nerves.

Statisticians have a bad habit of going too far with the fallacy of averages. They'll be tempted next to move there was nothing extraordinary about the wind that recently blew down part of the state because the wind velocity average for the month was no higher than ordinary.

If they had enough statistics, they no doubt could prove that this isn't a particularly bad war because it isn't doing any more damage than has been done on the average for the last 1,000 years. What the statisticians must realize, whether it's weather or war, is that human beings prefer to enjoy their misery where they find it. Right now, it's their pleasure to growl about the rain. Whether it's too much or not, it's too often.

MR. LEWIS AND LABOR STRATEGY

Pending the forthcoming guesses of the experts on what John L. Lewis may have up his sleeve by applying for re-admittance to the AFL with his half million-odd miners, most Americans probably will assume that this will turn out to be one more move against the mine leader's antagonists.

It has been almost as much fun the last few years to speculate on his strategy as the strategy of the military leaders—and just about as useless. Only one conclusion is safe: Mr. Lewis never does anything without a reason satisfactory to him.

He is, and the word is used advisedly, a labor statesman, which is to say that among labor politicians in general he stands out as the individual who has the greatest individual effect on what happens in the labor movement. For reasons of his own, he tried to topple AFL by breaking away and organizing CIO. For reasons of his own, he made his separation from CIO turn on the outcome of an election over which he had little or no control. For reasons of his own, he now wants to rejoin AFL. Why and wherefore is something to guess about during breathing spells between speculative sprees over the other—the greater—war of the moment.

We are not fighting with Russia, Great Britain and China because we love them. We respect them, but we are fighting for our own self-preservation.—Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, May 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope although fairly lively and eventful, may not be read as entirely favorable or propitious. There may be subtle plots and undercurrents lying in wait for the unwary. This may menace home or love ties as well.

Those whose birthday it is may feel the energy for initiative and enterprise, but they may encounter treachery unless shrewd.

A child born on this day may be energetic and practical but may suffer from the evil machinations of their friends, to their loss and sorrow.

For Monday, May 24

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a time of onrushing events which may send the ambitions and aspirations to new levels of good fortune. It should be a time for reaching to the highest of goals with vigor, determination and skill. Seek these and forge ahead, for cherished hopes and wishes in business and at home.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of happiness, with favors from the mighty. Such goals should be sought with initiative, courage and resolution. The joys of such fulfillments may also be felt in the home and love life.

A child born on this day may be ably endowed to attain great heights in business, in social and domestic life. It should be ambitious in anything it may tackle in life.

According to a news dispatch—we don't know how the reporter found out—delegates at the "secret" Food Conference are quarreling about whether French or English shall be the official language of the meeting. And we thought all along that food needs no language. Once upon a time French may have been the language of diplomacy but that was in the days of Henry the Fourth—and these are the days of Henry the Ford.

All nations great and small must have equal opportunity of development. Those who are stronger should consider their strength as a trust to be used to help the weaker nations to fit themselves for full self-government and not to exploit them. Exploitation is spiritually as degrading to the exploiter as to the exploited.—Madame Chiang Kai-shek.

BELIEVES BALDNESS IS HEREDITARY

Clendening, However, Does Not Know of A Cure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I HAVE had a number of letters recently from people who want to know the cause and prevention of baldness. If I know this, I probably wouldn't be writing newspaper articles, but would be living in luxury on the fruits of my knowledge, surrounded by flunkies who were waiting on me hand and foot.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It must be evident to anyone who goes around his fellow creatures that nobody knows the cause and cure of baldness. Sit in the back row of a movie theater, notice the reflection of the light on the bald domes and mark the neat tresses below the line where the hair stops. If there were a good treatment, you would not see them. The best bet is that baldness is hereditary. The hair is extremely sensitive to hereditary influences. Identical twins have hair that swirls, one in one direction and the other in the opposite. Naturally curly hair curls with remarkable similarity to that of the father or mother of the possessor. The number of waves and the position of the waves are exactly the same. The hereditary nature of hair growth is shown in all of the lower animals.

Dogs of one species have, generation after generation, the same hair color and distribution. So it is very likely that baldness is hereditary. This is no comfort to anybody who has it, however, because by the time he begins to get bald, there is nothing he can do about his father or grandfather.

No Help for Baldness

The hair roots are little cellular structures and in a person who is doomed to get bald, they begin to atrophy at about the age of 28. Nobody who goes through the experience of having his hair come out in wads can ever believe that people begin to get bald at the age of 28, but they do just the same and nothing can stop the inevitable progress.

All the perfumes of Araby, all the lights, all the electric heaters, all the massage, all the gadgets, all the shampoos, all the vitamins and all the endocrines in the world can be advocated, but it will be in vain. Philosophy and resignation are the only treatments that are worthwhile.

I am referring now to a common form of baldness. There is a condition called alopecia areata, in which bald spots occur. It may affect individuals at any age and can be successfully treated.

The care of healthy hair is not a matter of very much moment. Those who give a great deal of time and thought to their hair probably overeat it, rather than underfeed it. The simplest forms of soap and warm water are the best for washing the hair, and thorough washing should not be done more than once a week.

Wetting Hair Has Less

Advice against wetting the hair daily is quackery. I know a dozen people—one of them being myself—who have immersed their hair in water two or three times a day for many years and who still have a good, heavy crop of hair.

Dandruff is a form of seborrheic dermatitis. For cleansing—benzine, followed by sweet oil or olive oil. Soap and water are to be avoided except once a week when on Saturday night an ointment containing salicylic acid, 1 part, ammoniated mercury, 2 parts and ointment, 30 parts, is rubbed in, left all night and worked out with warm water and green soap the following morning.

Answer: Shingles is an affection of the nervous system, usually affecting those nerves that go around the skin of the chest or trunk and causing a very painful skin eruption in the form of a blister. The cause is unknown, but it is not contagious.

T. Y.:—What is fluid in the tissues and from what may it develop? What is digitals and what is it given for and will it reduce weight?

Answer: Fluid in the tissues comes from a heart weakness in most cases and in such cases digitals is a great benefit because it strengthens the heart and thus removes fluid from the tissues. In this way digitals "reduces weight."

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—The war has superimposed on California's essentially agricultural economy, an industrial economy that promises to exceed the former. The value of California's manufactured products has risen from $2,738,178,000 in 1939 to $8,500,000,000 in 1942. Aircraft and ships account for a large percentage of the increase.

The Navajo Indians of New Mexico believe that Shiprock, an isolated butte which towers 1,900 feet above the plain, was once a great bird which brought the tribe to New Mexico. Natural dikes extend out from the butte which, from its air, look like the wings of a giant bird, with Shiprock its body.

Church and War
"The church is not a war, though it is in the war. And this distinction is not just a matter of splitting hairs."

"The church is not at war, because war is not the business of the church. The Lord of the Church has defined its mission: To preach the Gospel, to teach all nations, to make disciples of men. It indeed wages war, but against spiritual enemies and with spiritual weapons. It aims to save men from their sins and to bless them eternally."

"The church is not at war, because it is a universal fellowship. It cuts across national boundaries and far-flung battlelines. The members of the church are members of Christ's Body and Christ's Body is not divided nor at war."

"And yet the church is in the war. Its members are in the armed forces of their country. They were called and being 'subject unto the higher powers they went out. And the church has gone with them. It ministers to its sons and daughters, who are fighting the country's battle, through chaplains and service pastors, and service rendered by the home church."

"The church is in the war. All citizens are expected to support their country. Christians will do this 'for conscience sake.' They will be outstanding in their loyalty, paying their taxes and accepting the orders which the government issues, devoting time and strength to community service."

"The church is not at war. But its unceasing prayer is that peace will soon bless our weary world"—Rev. Bauman.

Morning worship service, 11 a. m.; sermon topic, "The Wrath of Man." "The inestimable destruction of our present time, which has been caused by the program of war, may be traced back to the spirit of wrath which has existed between nations and peoples. Of course, the theories are many, about the causes of the presence of this unfriendly attitude between races and peoples. Righteous wrath is spoken of as proper and justified. It is possible that all persons are ready and willing to classify their wrath as completely of the proper kind. Wrath can arise from very personal and trivial matters. It may assume such proportions that the rights and privileges of others are considered of no importance. Wrath may precipitate bloody wars and struggles. Generations may be forced to pay the excessive price which man's wrath may demand. Wrath may cancel the spirit of justice and fairness. The wrath of man does not work for the righteousness of God. It may be the servant of the evil one."—Rev. Keister.

SHOPPING FROCKS SHOULD BE COOL, FURBELOW FREE

Left, striped denim dress; center, printed voile; right, beige and brown dirndl type frock with Dutch bib.

This summer your marketing and shopping wardrobe should consist of cool, wrinkle discouraging cottons that are furbelow free. This is sound advice from the authorities who claim that your sewing plans and fabric buying should eliminate as many laundry problems as possible. For thrifty strategy plan a casual looking dress with purposeful detail by combining plain and striped denim. The smart style shown left above with stripes in vertical fashion for blouse tip and sleeves, and horizontally for a wide bodice panel that frames the double-breasted closing to the waist is an example. The four-gore skirt is of plain denim and so is the tailored belt. The final touch is a pair of mail-bag pockets on the skirt made of striped denim and plain for the huge pocket flaps. The printed voile, center, is the type that goes well with a large straw hat for daytime wear. The dirndl-type dress, right, is of beige cotton and has a Dutch-type embroidered bib front vestee and cap in gay color.

DEATH GOES NATIVE

By MAX LONG

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

I had been cogitating, while he was busy on his errand, and as I saw Mokino coming back along the path to the village, I said: "If he's a kahuna, Komako, and really has psychic powers, why don't we ask him what's going to happen to me in all this mess? You know, get him to tell my fortune."

Komako frowned uneasily. "Maybe Mokino told that kind of kahuna. Some can make sick men well, some can pray to death, some can stop wind or walk on fire. But only high-order kind can see into future, or past either. He not know who kill shark son or who is murderer."

"His psychic antenna might not have been connected up for that. But ask him to tell my fortune, anyway, and see what happens."

Mokino was about to enter his hut when Komako accosted him. They had quite a parley and Mokino studied me somberly. Finally he nodded and we followed him inside. His wife was not there, and I glanced about freely while Mokino went to a shelf and began fumbling among odds and ends of dishes.

It was a spare, neat place with its board walls and tin roof, its rough floor covered with lauhala mats. There was a fine feather lei hanging on one wall, and a large chrome of a fat Hawaiian in a tattered old center-table held my cherished meerschaum prominently displayed, and also three books. I investigated these curiously, as Mokino had his head in a cupboard.

To my astonishment one was a shabby Bible, another the Book of Common Prayer, the third the Book of Mormon. Mokino—or his family—had certainly come under the influence of missionaries.

But Mokino had not forgotten the ancient lore. By now he was at the center-table with a cheap glass tumbler half filled with water. Into it he began chipping with his horny thumb nail fine gratings from a piece of yellow ginger root.

Komako explained to me in a low tone: "He look in that to see what comes. I ask him to see if there is jail for you."

The water in the glass became murky and Mokino asked for a silver dollar. I thought how fortunate I was, having to have my palm crossed with silver. But Komako, who produced the dollar, said it was an offering to the gods. Mokino placed the coin under the tumbler, then bent to gaze into the murky water. He gazed steadily for some time, then lifted his head and gave me a look which seemed to confirm my worst fears.

"Prison," I asked gloomily. Mokino shook his head and muttered a dissertation in his own language in which I caught the word "ma-ke." Komako interpreted: "He see death all around you."

"And why not? The jinx is working overtime, it seems to me, after what happened last night."

Mokino stared again into the murky water; then said to me: "Ma-ke come close to you. Look out!"

I jumped. Anyone is likely to when the ace of spades is turned up in his fortune-telling deck. But Komako looked so worried I had to try to make light of it: "That's not likely. I'm too valuable as an accused to have the murderer turn a knife in me."

We left soon afterwards and I urged, "Let's go to Elaine. She should be awake by now. If only we can surmount the defensive wall the doctor and his mother will put up, we may have the whole thing finished in an hour or so."

"Yeah," Komako said absently, and we started back through the palm grove. "Hasty, you watch your self hard—not to get alone any time. I am watching, too, but maybe I get too busy."

I said everything I could to counteract the impression Mokino's warning had had on him, which I realized was deep because of his faith in Mokino's powers. We were talking so busily we did not notice, until we were almost at the pool, that Thornton and Josephine were there.

Thornton was sitting dejectedly on the sand in glistening wet bathing trunks, his head on his knees. Josephine, evidently not aware of the direction of the hedge. She came timidly, hopefully, trying to smile, and hesitated before she put her hand on his shoulder. He flinched and looked up at her. Her smile died and she stepped backward.

"Thornton, I—!" The girl looked miserable.

"Can't you see I want to be alone?" he said furiously, and dropped his head on his knees again.

Her face quivered as if she had been struck, she turned, put her arm across her eyes and ran stumbling through the sand back toward the hedge.

Komako's eyes were flashing with anger. He strode down to Thornton and yanked him around by one shoulder.

"Why you act like that?" he thundered. "Like spoil little boy! Not you got any sense?"

Thornton gazed up at him open-mouthed with astonishment, then flushed and scrambled to his feet. But Komako didn't let him answer.

"You big selfish blind stupid—what's-a-matter you! If you think you not love her, is different. But you do love her, no?"

"What's it to you?" Thornton asked hotly.

Komako calmed down as quickly as he had flared up. "Why you not show it, then? All time you think about music, write music. Little girl get lonesome—she want you. So what she do? She try to wake you up, make you jealous."

Thornton ripped out an oath. "That's none of your business!"

"Maybe," Komako admitted, but he wasn't stopped. "Delmar not mean that to her—!" He snapped his big fingers. "She hate him, she fight him off. And now she is afraid you think she kill him when he get too much for her."

"Not!" He was amazed, then questioning, then incredulous.

Komako nodded. "She get crazy idea like that when you not talk to her—treat her mean and cold. Why you not start being strong man and good husband? Come, Hasty, we wastink time here."

As I turned away with Komako, I saw Thornton looking as if he'd had a physical punch in the solar plexus. Before he could recover, Komako flashed back for one more thrust.

"What you do before you write music all time?"

"Worked in a bank," Thornton answered automatically out of his mixture of feelings.

Komako rejoined me and as we went on toward the hedge I asked dryly: "Trying to pin the murder on him—just when you've been tinkering up his marital troubles?"

Komako only grunted in answer, and then he put a hand on my arm, nodding toward the hedge. His fingers gripped me clear to the bone.

Coming through the opening were Budd, Herb, Dr. Latham and Rawson. And with them were two khaki-clad Hawaiian policemen. The one in the lead was small and litherish, with buck teeth, a straight brush of black hair and narrow eyes betraying the Japanese strain in his mixed blood. My heart sank.

"Hello, Sam," Komako croaked as they came toward us. "What you doing here?"

Sam Ota answered: "That man"—and he indicated Herb—"sent a boy up for me in the night. I got up out of bed, walked six miles, and I am a sick man."

His deputy, hulking large behind him, yessed him faithfully. "He had to stop and rest four-five times."

"Awful bad!" Komako looked fiercely at Herb. "You not got any heart, taking sick man from bed?"

Herb ignored Komako and leveled a broad spatulate finger at me. "There's your man, officer. That's Hoyt."

Komako broke out into a flood of Hawaiian talk to Sam Ota, but Budd interrupted it firmly and decisively.

"As we've told you, Mr. Ota, we want Hoyt locked up on suspicion of murder, and held for trial. The offense warrants it."

Again Komako's unintelligible syllables whanged the air, but this time they were different—high and staccato, with a respectful suzing in of the breath at intervals and accompanied by odd little bobbing bows. I realized that now he was appealing to Sam Ota in Japanese. Komako spoke all the island languages, no doubt with the same blithe disregard for syntax with which he spoke English. Ota replied with similar suckings and bowings, but seemed to become only more depressed.

Gerald Rawson came over to me looking distinctly sympathetic. "I say, old chap, you shouldn't be subjected to this, you know. It's perfectly barbaric! There must be white officers somewhere about."

"There aren't," I assured him, "and these are all good Americans. Besides, I'd rather have Komako on this case than all of Scotland Yard. He's close to a solution if he isn't interfered with."

"Yes, yes, I have confidence in him," Rawson asserted. "If I can be of any service—" He stopped as we both heard Sam Ota say in plain English:

"Let's have that fish knife, Komako."

Reluctantly Komako produced it from his pocket and laid back its paper covering. Ota scrutinized the weapon carefully, as did his young Hawaiian deputy, the latter with an air of heavy importance.

"H.B.H." Ota read from the handle of the knife, then glanced up at me. "Those initials yours? Is it your knife?"

"Yes," I admitted, then hurried to say: "But I didn't use it. Someone stole it from my sampan hoping to implicate me."

"The judge will have to pass on that," Ota said wearily, and rubbed his forehead with his hand. "I have a fever. And I got to hold an inquest." He stared hard at me and came to a decision. "You will stay on your sampan under guard till I send for you. We'll take you out to jail later."

Once more Komako protested, this time in his persuasive soft Hawaiian, and I knew he was pleading—though not openly—to have me at his side for the important business we had afoot with Elaine.

It was to no avail, however. Sam Ota outranked Komako and he had to take orders. The younger cop ranged himself alongside me and took my arm authoritatively. He was big and muscular and consumed with pride in his job. We walked in silence to the dinghy.

I felt queer and wobbly. At last the thing I had feared had come upon me. I was under arrest for murder, and every item of circumstantial evidence we had been able to discover pointed directly toward me.

Sell Axis Properties

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Within the next few months, the American public will get an opportunity to buy an estimated $500,000,000 worth of Axis properties seized by the government since Pearl Harbor, officials of the alien property custodian's office disclosed today.

Alien property experts and officials of the securities and exchange commission are working out details of plans to "Americanize" about 150 formerly German Japanese and Italian holdings by offering them for sale to citizens of this country.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Roosevelt has approved expenditure of $10,575 for two nurseries and two centers for 70 children each at Oxford, O., the Federal Works Agency announced.

I've been looking at a car that wasn't there

I WENT window shopping agalu yesterday.

I stared into a big, empty automobile showroom downtown—and pretty soon I saw a car.

She was kind of different from the bus I'm driving now. She was long, sleek and powerful-looking. The windshield sort of went clear around her, so that everybody inside could see out everywhere. There were no gears to shift. The cooling system was sealed—you never touched it from one year to another.

She had synthetic rubber tires you couldn't puncture—and that wear like iron. And fast? Man! The motor was only half as big as they are today—but how it would take the old girl along! And on one gallon of that new high-octane gas to every three my car uses now.

So—I made up my mind to buy her, then and there. And I will, too. One of these days, after the war's been over for a while, I'll walk in and drive her home. And I'll slap the money for her right down on the counter.

You see, I'm in the Payroll Savings Plan. Been in it ever since it started in my plant. Every single payday, I'm tucking away all I can in War Bonds.

That money's going to come back to me in ten years—and bring more money with it. Four dollars for every three.

I get a real kick out of thinking how that money's piling up for me. Money that's going to let me have some of the things I've always wanted to have—do some of the things I've always wanted to do.

Chances are, you're already in the Payroll Savings Plan—buying War Bonds—doing your bit. But don't stop there. Raise your sights! Do your best!

How millions of Americans have done their bit—and how they can do better:

Of the 34 million Americans on plant payrolls, nearly 30 millions of them have joined the Payroll Savings Plan. (If you aren't in yet—sign up tomorrow!)

Those Americans who have joined the Plan are investing, on the average, 10% of their earnings in War Bonds. (If you haven't reached 10% yet—keep trying!)

BUT

America's income this year will be the highest in history, about 125 BILLION dollars! In spite of all taxes and price rises, the average worker will have more money than last year—more than ever before!

That is why Uncle Sam has a right to ask us, individually, to invest more money in War Bonds, through the Payroll Savings Plan. He asks us to invest not 10% or 15% or 20%, but all we can!

YOU'VE DONE YOUR BIT --- NOW DO YOUR BEST!

CRAIG BEACH PARK TO REMAIN CLOSED

Arthur E. Mallory, general manager of Craig Beach park at Lake Milton, advises that the park will not open for the season of 1943.

Due to the rationing of gasoline and tires, the shortage of help and supplies, and a desire to cooperate with the war effort, it was decided to keep this playground and bathing beach closed for this season.

Eighteen states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico require full citizenship as a requirement to taking examinations to practice medicine.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, May 22.—It has been said that there's nothing like a good depression to help baseball, so maybe the prosperity of these times is reflected in the experiments this season with starting times for ball games. The "depression" theory is that when men are out of work they have plenty of time to visit the ball park but when they're working they can't get away afterwards. So far this season major league clubs have played afternoon, night, twilight and morning games—the last two presumably for the benefit of war workers. Now, with double headers piling up, the Dodgers and Reds have scheduled a daylight-and-dusk double-header for June 30 and the Phillies and Braves are booked for morning and afternoon bill June 15. How about a continuous performance next?

THE OLD DAZE

A lot of you likely can remember when there weren't so many places to go and when a holiday always meant one game in the morning, lunch at that place across the street from the park and another game right afterward. And on July 4 you tossed firecrackers at the umpire and likely as not hung around to look rocks at the carryall in which the visiting team was riding to its hotel. Well, you're riding to the park in streetcars again, so maybe the rest will come back.

SERVICE DEPT.

Harris Horder, former six day bike racer who joined the American army in Australia, was the tail runner in a Liberator bomber that shot down six of 12 attacking Jap Zeros over New Guinea recently.

Must have thought they were trying to steal a lay at 6 a. m. The bakers and cooks softball team was the first Fort Sheridan outfit to challenge the new organized WAAC squad. If they lose, the soldiers probably will dare the girls to try a cooking contest.

CLEANING THE CUFF

When the Great Lakes sailors play the University of Illinois today, there'll be a reunion of two rival coaches. Lieut. Mickey Cochran caught for the Tigers and Wallie Roetger played in the outfield for the Cardinals in the 1932 world series. Al Barlick, the National league umpire, took his army screen test yesterday. He's married and has a seven-weeks old daughter.

LOS ANGELES—The old adage used to be to the effect that "if a nan bites a dog, that's news," but Mrs. Evelyn Murphy went that one better. She told Judge Ben Rosenhal that her husband had a right to bite her. "You see, judge," she stated, "I bit him first." The two nayhem-ers were dismissed upon payment of the $25 that it cost the city to file the suit.

Montgomery Tops Beau Jack; Plans Non-Title Fights

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, May 22.—A pair of tonisls—or, rather, their absence—have made a lightweight champion out of In-and-outer Bob Montgomery, and now that he's traded in those throat troubles for the title, he's figuring on showing who's the boss of the 135-pounders from coast to coast.

Having won New York and New Jersey title recognition by bouncing the Bouncing Beau Jack all over the premises for the better part of 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden last night, and being virtually assured of Pennsylvania's "blessing" Wednesday, Bobcat Bob is thinking of taking his crown for a quick swing around the circuit from Washington to Portland, Me.

May Meet Beau Again

After that, he'll go through with his contract to give the Jumping Jack a return shot at the bantle, probably in the Polo grounds here in July. But, off last night's shindig, which entertained 18,343 of the citizens, the Beau should take his time about getting back within range of the shots with which Bobcat Bob all but punched both his eyes shut last night.

There are a lot of theories as to just what switched hot-and-cold Robert into a fancy Philadelphia firecracker who had the highly-favored one-time shoe-shine boy all but looking for a door last night long before the 15 rounds were up, but the most logical seems to be the one about the terrible tonsils.

Certainly, his little job of work last night was as good as he's ever done. After letting the Beau have his fling for five rounds, Bob came along to take the play through the last nine rounds and grab the title in the wild-swinging Georgian's first defense since he was handed the honors by the New York commission after Sammy Angott abdicated last fall.

There'll be mighty few among the customers who clipped in to the $94,500 "pot" in the garden last night willing to wager that he can't show that his first frolic was no fluke.

BROTHERS PROVE VALUE OF NAME

(By International News Service) MAXWELL FIELD, Ala.—Maxwell field contradicts William Shakespeare and claims "There is something in a name."

Take the name "Brothers," for instance. Walter R. and Earl P. Brothers, who are brothers, are aviation cadets at the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School.

But that's not all. Another brother, Herbert H. Brothers, is an aviation cadet in the Gulf Coast Training Center. The eldest brother among the Brothers is Col. Clyde L. Brothers, an Army Air Forces flight surgeon at Tampa, Fla.

The Brothers brothers hail from Richmond, Va.

Wife Of Air Ace Says Mate Possesses Right Confidence

(By United Press)

SAN DIEGO—Mrs. June Foss, 23-year-old-bride of America's foremost air ace—Marine Capt. Joseph Jacob Foss—attributed her husband's success in shooting down 26 Japanese planes to the fact that he knows his limitations as well as his abilities.

"My husband is one of those fortunate men who know their own abilities, which probably has something to do with his shooting down 26 Japanese planes; but he also knows his limitations—which must be one reason he is alive today," she explained.

Mrs. Foss believes a good philosophy, like a good diet, is very important in the stress of war. She said she didn't know about his diet, but there was nothing wrong with his philosophy.

"He lives very much from day to day," she said, "yet anything he does he does well. If he thinks he can't do it well, he won't attempt it. He has loads of confidence in himself, but always it's well placed."

The famous flyer's wife seems to have a very excellent philosophy herself, for she believes in keeping busy, "so you don't have time to sit around and think up all sorts of possibilities."

Met In High School Mrs. Foss met her husband when they were both attending Washington high school in Sioux Falls, S. D.—"home" to both of them. She was graduated from Iowa State college in June, 1941, and is now a dietitian at Scripps Metabolic Clinic at LaJolla, Cal. They had been married only one month when he left for combat duty in the Southwest Pacific last fall.

Since the Foss family was not wealthy, Captain Foss worked his way through college, playing the saxophone and working at other odd jobs.

"Joe worked in a butcher shop part-time, and on vacations for the packing house and as an attendant in a gas station, where he learned something of the mechanics of a trade, which undoubtedly stands him in good stead now," she related.

His first flight training was at Sioux Skyways. Then he took the CAA government flying courses at the University of South Dakota.

Hitch-Hiked to Minneapolis Selecting the Marine Corps for his career, Foss traveled "on his thumb" to Minneapolis, in sub-zero weather, with $5 in his pocket, to enlist in flight training in January, 1940. He was one of the two accepted out of 28 applicants that day.

"But Joe just had to get in, and when Joe decides he's got to do something, he finds a way to do it," Mrs. Foss explained.

Flight training at Pensacola completed his preparation to be a fighter pilot and he was made an instructor at the end of his course. But she said that when her husband was transferred to aerial photographic duty as a pilot, he was unhappy. He used to say, "This is too slow for me—I've got to have action."

"When he became a fighter pilot, and joined me in California, he was the happiest man alive," the young wife added.

Mrs. Foss once feared that her husband would find the Solomon Islands "so fascinating," or the "hunt" so exciting, that he'd find homecoming dull in comparison. But the captain, in a letter, allayed her fears, writing:

"Don't worry about me wanting to come home; that's the life I'm fighting for now, and we'll have it, too—it's not so far off."

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—While not fighting, the American Legion and the Red Cross see no reasons why the armed forces of the Navy and Marines shouldn't do a little deep-sea fishing. They have launched a drive for the collection of all deep-sea fishing tackle now lying idle in basements and attics.

INDIANS, YANKEES TO PLAY TONIGHT

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, May 22.—The Cleveland Indians hoarded their ace moundsmen for the New York Yankees, but thanks to five successive postponements, the league leaders will threaten with their own hurling elite when they make their debut in tonight's floodlight fray.

Manager Lou Boudreau has chosen Jim Bagby to work against Hank Borowy in the opener. For Sunday's scheduled double header, the Tribe manager will use Al Smith and Chubby Dean. Ernie Bonham and Spud Chandler are expected to hurl for the invaders.

The weather caused postponement of yesterday's contest and the Tribe management announced it would be played tonight at the Stadium with a bargain bill arranged for the weekend date.

The Yankees haven't taken the field since last Sunday when they divided two games with the St. Louis Browns. The Indians played only two games of the scheduled four against the Red Sox this week, losing both ends of a double header Thursday.

LOS ANGELES—The housing situation here is so acute that a humming bird was apparently obliged to build its nest on the flat top of a nursery stake at the nursery of Charles Simons. The humming bird thus has no privacy, her nest is only three feet from the ground and nursery workers brush her nest at all hours during the day.

Efforts Of Mackmen Shaded By Excitement Over Phillies

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

In the hubbaloob over Bill Cox's revival of the Phillies, it may have been overlooked that Connie Mack's Athletics aren't doing so badly either.

The American league standings show the A's in sixth place today, but Philadelphia—and the Chicago White Sox as well—are only two games out of second place a month after the belated start of the 1943 season.

The Athletics haven't a 300 hitter on the club—Bobby Estalella and Jo-Jo White dropped below that mark last night—but they've come up with a couple of prize-package pitchers who mean a lot to a club in these days of low-hit games.

The Athletics' 2-1 triumph over the Browns was a highlight of a three-game major league program which produced a total of only 36 hits and seven runs.

Chicago's White Sox kept pace with the Athletics and dropped Washington a few points out of second place by winning another floodlight contest, 1 to 0, behind the three-hit hurling of Johnny Humphries, while Detroit's Tigers grabbed fourth place from St. Louis as the result of their 2-1, 13-inning conquest of the Boston Red Sox in the afternoon. Cleveland's Indians moved into second.

The entire National league card was postponed, but the Phillies again managed to get into the spotlight. Owner Bill Cox revealed he had made an offer to Lefty Gomez, former Yankee great recently cast adrift by the Boston Braves, and he listed a Saturday night game, a major league rarity, after last night's game was called off. The Cleveland Indians, determined to meet the Yankees under the lights, also booked a game for tonight after a postponement last night.

Miners Going Back to Work As Panel Report Is Submitted

clared last night the AFL intended to stick to its no-strike pledge for the war's duration. Green implied Lewis' mine workers would be bound by such a pledge if their application for readmittance to the AFL is granted.

Back-to-work trends also were under way at strike-affected war production plants of the Chrysler corporation in the Detroit area. Walkouts which union leaders said were unauthorized, but which company officials termed organized left 27,500 war workers idle last night.

Ordered Back to Jobs

Leaders of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the regional WLB at Detroit conferred with Army and Navy officers yesterday, then ordered the workers back to their jobs. Principal issue in the dispute is renewal of a working contract that expired last November. Union leaders maintain that collective bargaining has "completely broken down," a contention denied by company officials.

However, a work stoppage at the Bethlehem steel company's steelton plant near Harrisburg, Pa., spread from a rolling mill to several other departments last night, and George Medrick, district chairman of the United Steel Workers (CIO) described the walkout as a "wildcat strike."

Estimates of the men involved varied from 300 to 1,800. Medrick charged company foremen had "pigeon-holed" grievances over job shifts, but a company spokesman said the walkout followed "the penalty of one day's loss of work to one employee who had refused to perform work assigned to him by his foreman."

In Washington, labor sources disclosed the WLB has decided to allow a 3-cent hourly increase employes of four major rubber companies—Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and U. S. Rubber. The increase is almost 5 cents under the maximum permissible by the Little Steel formula. The decision affects about 40,000 workers in Akron, O., and several thousand others in other parts of the country.

COUNSEL IS NAMED FOR GUN WIELDER

East Liverpool Man Will Be Arraigned Monday On Murder Charge

LISBON, May 22.—Judge Joel H. Sharp today appointed Atty. Jason Brooks and Atty. Donald Shay, of East Liverpool, as counsel for the defense of Francis M. Holland, 42, East Liverpool Negro, who will be arraigned on a first degree murder indictment in common pleas court here Monday morning.

Holland, the alleged self-confessed slayer of Miss Phoebe Ann Peachey, 22, who reluctantly entered a plea of "not guilty" when bound over to the grand jury, at first rejected the suggestion of counsel on his behalf, stating that he wanted to "tell the truth." Brought into court yesterday, he acceded to court procedure and, being unable to employ an attorney, Judge Sharp made the appointment of defense counsel.

Holland fired two shots into the head and body of Miss Peachey on Sunday evening, May 2, as she was walking home from church with members of her family, after she had ignored repeated requests by Toland that he "wanted to talk to her." Holland gave himself up to East Liverpool police Monday morning following an all-night manhunt, during which he had hidden in Lisbon.

Meanwhile, Holland appears unconcerned over his future. In the Mahoning county jail, where he is held without bond, he is seemingly more interested in a change in the bill-of-fare of the prison, according to a request relayed to the office of Sheriff George Hayes. The missive asked that the sheriff bring a pound of fig cakes, two apple pies, three jelly roll cakes, two pounds of apples and a half-dozen oranges the next time he visits the jail. Holland said that he would pay for the delicacies.

Cocco will return to Canton to await a new trial or an appeal to the Ohio supreme court.

BERLIN AND OTHER TARGETS BOMBED

Reich Capital Is Pounded By British Third Successive Night

mations over Wilhelmshaven, making the attack "the toughest yet—next to Bremen," raided April 17 at a cost of 16 bombers.

See Allied Campaign

Meanwhile, these factors were among those pointing up a growing supposition that it may not be long before the beginning of an Allied attempt to knock out Germany from the air, a program that Prime Minister Churchill said in Washington this week was worthy of experiment.

1. Beyond preparations for a renewed home-based offensive, unofficial observers in London could find no logical reason why the RAF should have kept its fleet of four-engine bombers grounded through more than a week of perfect raiding weather. RAF Britain-based air giants have not been out in force since the night of May 13.

2. Dedicating the first American-built air base in Britain, a $4,000,000 field named for the late Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Andrews' successor as commander of U. S. forces in Europe, declared that "from this and other airfields, bombers and fighters will darken the skies of enemy countries. That is no figure of speech. It is a fact based on production figures."

3. Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair, speaking yesterday at the opening of a bond selling campaign, asserted the Allies were able to obtain a sufficient number of bombers to destroy "the sources of German war power."

4. Capt. Harold Balfour, under-secretary of state for air, said in a Norwich address today British bombers had dropped some 1,500 tons of bombs on German objectives twice this month and added that many more Axis cities would be "ticked off" on a city-by-city bombing calendar.

More than 1,000 20-millimeter shells are made every minute in American munitions plants.

ARMY IS GUARDING ON 'FLOODS FRONT'

Soldiers, Engineers, Civilian Force Watching 100-Mile Stretch

(By Associated Press)

An army of soldiers, engineers and civilian defense volunteers stood guard today along a 100-mile front of the mighty Mississippi river, choked by flood waters from scores of tributaries, ready to meet the imminent dangers from the ever-rising "Father of Waters."

From Alton, Ill., southward to Cape Girardeau, Mo., some 4,250 troops patrolled the river front, an area regarded by Army Engineers at St. Louis as the immediate concentration point in the six-state mid-west flood zone.

There were other points of danger in the immediate area, however, with the Illinois river on the rise along a 200-mile front and the Missouri river roaring out of its normal channel as it neared its junction with the Mississippi near Alton.

Flood conditions harassed thousands of families in Indiana, Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma. The homeless total in the entire area was well above the 100,000 mark and the damage to crops and property by the floods reached staggering figures, losses running into the millions of dollars.

The number of dead was 14—eight in Indiana; 3 in Missouri; 2 in Oklahoma, and 1 in Illinois.

Lieut. Col. J. A. Adams, deputy and army district engineer at St. Louis, said everything possible had been done to meet the dangers of the rising Mississippi from Alton southward 100 miles. He said the Carlyle seawall in Perry county, Mo., had been reinforced and completed, as had other levees along the Mississippi on both the Illinois and Missouri sides.

A "grave" situation was reported early today in Beardstown, Ill., as the Illinois river resumed its rampage late yesterday after falling earlier.

Another area described as "critical" by Col. R. E. M. Desilets of the U. S. Engineer corps at St. Louis was the St. Charles (Mo.) district, where damage already was extensive.

City officials in Muskogee, Okla., discontinued water service to the 40,000 inhabitants to conserve the small supply remaining in the reservoir after floods left the waterworks inoperative.

Breaks in the Illinois side of the levee on the Wabash river relieved the greatest part of the pressure at Vincennes, Ind., and dikes in that city were considered trustworthy.

There were only a few danger spots left in Arkansas.

Bumped Off?

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Elmer Davis, director of war information, says that perhaps Admiral Yamamoto, reported by Tokyo to have died in air combat, "was bumped off by some of the rest of the mob—as has happened to high officers in Germany and Italy."

Davis, in his weekly radio address last night, said "the Japanese navy was none too brilliantly handled in the latter half of 1942, so his colleagues may have decided he had outlived his usefulness and that they could cover up his murder by giving him a great publicity build-up as a hero."

Body Is Identified

AKRON, May 22.—A body found shot in the head, chest and back behind a vacant Cuyahoga Falls building Thursday night was identified from fingerprints as that of George Gladish, 25. Detective Lieutenant Martin Cooney of Cleveland said Gladish was a former workhouse inmate.

She leaves four children, Mrs. Helen Johnson, Mrs. Clara Riley, Leo and Russell, all of California. The funeral will be held at 9 a. m. Monday.

OMINOUS SILENCE COVERS RED FRONT

MOSCOW, May 22.—An ominous silence prevailed along the Russian front today with evidence pointing to the approaching zero hour for the long-expected German offensive.

On the German side of the front, the invaders continued to pile up stores of ammunition, tanks and men for the summer push that may come almost any time.

One front-line dispatch used the Russian phrase "stern silence" to describe the present, tense atmosphere.

(The midday communique as broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor in London, ignored German radio reports that the Red army has launched drives of its own as prelude to offensives in the caucasus and Orei sectors.)

FARMERS HOPING FOR DRY WEATHER

LISBON, May 22.—Plenty of sunshine and warm breezes, County Agent Floyd Lower says, are the greatest need of the farmers of Columbiana county if the "Food for Freedom" program is to be realized.

Farm work and gardening have been greatly handicapped by the excessive rainfall of the past few weeks, Lower says, and the yield next fall is definitely being curtailed by the late planting which will not permit the maturing of many crops.

Although late, there are some oats not yet planted in the county because farmers have been unable to sow the grain in the fields made soft by daily rainfall. In many instances farmers cannot get their equipment into the field to work and prepare the ground, Lower says.

The same condition exists with regard to the preparation of corn ground, and although corn would have been planted by May 10, there is very little in the ground today. Unless weather conditions improve, Lower added, late potatoes will also be affected.

The hay crop, however, with a little warm weather, will probably turn out well in the county, Lower believes, and fruit and berry crops are expected to be very good, as they have been held back by the cold spring and not damaged by frosts.

The reservoir at Zaghouan, Tunisia, has been supplying drinking water for more than 18 centuries.
